Re: Diana Moreno v. DLA Piper LLP (US).
California Labor Code § 2699 Penalties; Notice of Intent to File Suit

Dear Counsel:

This office represents Plaintiff Diana Moreno ("Plaintiff") and a proposed group of current and former employees working for DLA Piper LLP (US) ("DLA Piper" and/or "Defendant/s") in the State of California for violations of California Labor Code §§ 201, 202, 203, 204, 210, 226, 226.7, 510, 512, 1194, 1194.2, 1197, 1197.1, 1198,¹ 1199, 2802, as well as IWC Wage Order No. 4-2001. Plaintiff wishes to bring a representative action on behalf of herself and the State of California as well as on behalf of the following groups of aggrieved employees:

(1) all individuals who are or were employed by Defendants or their predecessor or merged entities as Senior Client Accounts Specialists, who were not provided with duty-free meal periods, from one year prior to the mailing of this notice through the present ("meal period aggrieved employees");

(2) all individuals who are or were employed by Defendants or their predecessor or

merged entities as Senior Client Accounts Specialists, who worked shifts in excess of three and a half hours, from one year prior to the mailing of this notice through the present (“rest period aggrieved employees”);

- (3) all individuals who are or were employed by Defendants, or their predecessor or merged entities as Senior Client Accounts Specialists, who performed work-related duties off the clock from any time from one year prior the filing of this notification through the present (“unpaid time aggrieved employees”);*
- (4) all individuals who are or were employed by Defendants, or their predecessor or merged entities as Senior Client Accounts Specialists, who work or worked in excess of eight hours per day or 40 hours per week from any time from one year prior the filing of this notification through the present (“overtime aggrieved employees”);*
- (5) all individuals who are or were working remotely for Defendants or their predecessor or merged entities, who do or did not receive reimbursements for the costs associated with keeping and maintaining a home office from one year prior to the filing of this notice through the present (“reimbursement aggrieved employees”);*
- (6) all individuals who are or were employed by Defendants, or their predecessor or merged entities as Senior Client Accounts Specialists, who were not provided with accurate wage statements from one year prior to the mailing of this notice through the present (“wage statement aggrieved employees”);*
- (7) all individuals who are or were employed by Defendants or their predecessor or merged entities as Senior Client Accounts Specialists, and who were paid more than seven days after the close of payroll for that time between one year prior to the filing of this notification through the present, (“late payment aggrieved employees”); and*
- (8) all individuals who are or were employed by Defendants or their predecessor or merged entities as Senior Client Accounts Specialists, who were not paid their wages at the time of termination or within seventy-two (72) hours of their resignation and have not been paid those sums for thirty (30) days thereafter, from one year prior to the mailing of this notice through the present (“waiting time aggrieved employees”).*

Collectively, hereinafter referred to as the “Aggrieved Employees” or “aggrieved employees.”

This letter is to provide notice to you and to the California Labor Workforce Development Agency of some of the facts and legal theories in connection with the above referenced aggrieved employees in compliance with the Private Attorneys General Act of 2004, pursuant to California

Labor Code § 2698 *et seq.*²

Factual Background

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees are and were employed by DLA Piper LLP (US), a Maryland limited liability partnership based in Baltimore, Maryland. It is a global law firm operating in various countries, including the United States.

From January 2022 until she was terminated in or about April 2024, Plaintiff was hired by Defendants as a Senior Client Accounts Specialist in San Diego, CA and paid a salary of $48.75 per hour.

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees were required by Defendants to work beyond their shifts in order to finish their tasks. This would take around three to four hours per day and up to two to three times per week. Unfortunately, Defendants refused to pay Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for work done in excess of eight hours per day and they are made to perform these work-related tasks off-the-clock.

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees were also not given legally compliant meal and rest periods. Defendants required Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees to remain on-call even during their breaks. Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees would receive work-related messages and calls, and their managers would often ask for information about the billers while taking their breaks. As a result, Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees' meal and rest periods were constantly interrupted or were not taken at all. While they had to perform work-related tasks during their breaks, Defendants refused to compensate Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for these off-the-clock work done beyond 40 hours per week.

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees worked remotely. However, they were required by Defendants to keep and maintain their respective home offices with their own money. Despite spending for all these work-related items, Defendants did not reimburse Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees' home office expenses.

Claims Asserted by Plaintiff

i. Plaintiff and the Aggrieved Employees Were Not Compensated for All Hours Worked

Labor Code § 1197 states the California requirement that employees must be paid at least the minimum wage fixed by the Commission, and any payment of less than the minimum wage is unlawful. Labor Code § 1194 entitles "any employee receiving less than the legal minimum wage...to recover in a civil action the unpaid balance of the full amount of this minimum wage."

² See Cardenas v. McLane FoodServices, Inc. (C.D. Cal. Jul. 8, 2011) 796 F. Supp. 2d 1246, 1261; Moua v. Int'l Bus. Machines Corp. (N.D. Cal. Jan. 31, 2012) 2012 WL 370570, at *5; York v. Starbucks Corp., (C.D. Cal. Nov. 1, 2012) 2012 WL 10890355, at *4.

IWC Wage Order 4-2001 § 9 also obligates employers to pay each employee minimum wages for all hours worked.

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees were required by Defendants to work beyond their shifts in order to finish their tasks. This would take around three to four hours per day and up to two to three times per week. Unfortunately, Defendants refused to pay Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for work done in excess of eight hours per day and they are made to perform these work-related tasks off-the-clock.

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees were also not given legally compliant meal and rest periods. Defendants required Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees to remain on-call even during their breaks. Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees would receive work-related messages and calls and their managers would often ask for information about the billers while taking their breaks. As a result, Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees' meal and rest periods were constantly interrupted or were not taken at all. While they had to perform work-related tasks during their breaks, Defendants refused to compensate Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for these off-the-clock work done beyond 40 hours per week. As a result of all of these, Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees are not compensated for all hours worked.

In 2018, the California Supreme Court held in Troester v. Starbucks, Inc. (2018) 5 Cal.5th 829, that an employee must be compensated for any time in which they are under the control of their employer, and performing work, even if that amount of time, as here, is limited to several hours per month. Thus, by not compensating Plaintiff and the unpaid time aggrieved employees for the time spent working after their shifts, during their breaks, and other work done off the clock, Defendants violated the Labor Code and the Wage Order.

Similarly, Labor Code § 1194.2 authorizes employees to recover wages to recover liquidated damages for violations of Labor Code § 1194. Where an employee, as Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees are not paid for all hours worked under Labor Code § 1194, the employee may recover minimum wages for the time associated with the hours worked for which they received no compensation. (See Sillah v. Command Int'l Sec. Servs. (N.D. Cal. 2015) 154 F. Supp. 3d 891 [holding that employees suing for failure to pay overtime could recover liquidated damages under § 1194.2 if they also showed they were paid less than minimum wage]; accord Andrade v. Arby's Rest. Grp., Inc. (N.D. Cal. Dec. 12, 2016) No. 15-cv-03175 NC, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 172319, at *20-21.) Since Defendants failed to provide Plaintiff and all aggrieved employees with compensation for all hours worked, each are entitled to recover liquidated damages under Labor Code § 1194.2 through PAGA. Based upon these same factual allegations, Plaintiff also seeks penalties on behalf of all aggrieved employees under Labor Code § 1199.

ii. Plaintiff and the Aggrieved Employees Were Not Paid Proper Overtime Compensation for All Hours Worked in Excess of 8 Hours in Day or Forty Hours in a Workweek

Labor Code § 510 requires an employer to compensate an employee who works more than eight (8) hours in one workday, forty (40) hours in a workweek, and for the first eight (8) hours worked on the seventh consecutive day no less than one and one-half times the regular rate of pay for an employee. Further, Labor Code § 510 obligates employers to compensate employees at no less than twice the regular rate of pay when an employee works more than twelve (12) hours in a day or more than eight (8) hours on the seventh consecutive day of work. In accordance with Labor Code § 1194, Plaintiff and the overtime aggrieved employees could not then agree and cannot now agree to work for a lesser wage than the amount proscribed by Labor Code §§ 510 and 1194.

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees were required by Defendants to work beyond their shifts in order to finish their tasks. This would take around three to four hours per day and up to two to three times per week. Unfortunately, Defendants refused to pay Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for work done in excess of eight hours per day and they are made to perform these work-related tasks off-the-clock.

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees were also not given legally compliant meal and rest periods. Defendants required Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees to remain on-call even during their breaks. Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees would receive work-related messages and calls, and their managers would often ask for information about the billers while taking their breaks. As a result, Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees' meal and rest periods were constantly interrupted or were not taken at all. While they had to perform work-related tasks during their breaks, Defendants refused to compensate Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for these off-the-clock work done beyond 40 hours per week.

Because Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees spent eight hours or more working on "compensated" time, the work done in excess of eight hours on those days should have been compensated at twice the regular rate of Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees. Instead, no compensation was paid at all, in violation of Cal. Labor Code §§ 510, 1194, and Wage Order 4-2001. They are aggrieved employees for purposes of seeking penalties under PAGA.

iii. Plaintiff and the Meal Period Aggrieved Employees Are Not and Were Not Provided with Meal Periods of Thirty Minutes of Interrupted Off-Duty Time

Labor Code § 512 requires employers to provide employees with thirty (30) minute uninterrupted and duty-free meal period within the first five hours of work. "An on-duty meal period is permitted only when the nature of the work prevents an employee from being relieved of all duty and the parties agree in writing to an on-duty paid meal break." (Lubin v. The Wackenhut Corp. (2016) 5 Cal. App. 5th 926, 932.) The written agreement must include a provision allowing the employee to revoke it at any time. Id.

Generally, the DLSE and courts have "found that the nature of the work exception applies: '(1) where the work has some particular external force that requires the employee to be on duty at all times, and (2) where the employee is the sole employee of a particular employer.'" (Id. at p. 945; Abdullah v. U.S. Security Associates, Inc. (9th Cir. 2013) 731 F.3d 952, 958–959.) "[I]t is the employer's obligation to determine whether the nature of the work prevents an employee from being relieved before requiring an employee to take an on-duty meal period." (Lubin, supra, 5 Cal. App. 5th at p. 946.) Nor may an employer "discharge its duty by arguing that its clients who requested on-duty meal periods determined that the nature of the work prevented officers from being relieved of all duty.” (Id. at p. 947; Benton, supra, 220 Cal. App. 4th at p. 729.)

As with rest periods, under Labor Code § 512, if an employer maintains a uniform policy that does not authorize and permit the amount of mealtime called for under the law (as specified in the applicable Wage Order), “it has violated the wage order and is liable.” The Brinker Court explained in the context of rest breaks that employer liability attaches from adopting an unlawful policy:

An employer is required to authorize and permit the amount of rest break time called for under the wage order for its industry. If it does not—if, for example, it adopts a uniform policy authorizing and permitting only one rest break for employees working a seven-hour shift when two are required—it has violated the wage order and is liable.

Brinker Rest. Corp. v. Sup. Ct. (2012) 53 Cal.4th 1004, 1033. (Emphasis added.)

As a result of their meal period policies requiring Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees to remain on-call during meal periods, Defendants violated Labor Code § 512 and IWC Wage Order No. 4 by failing to provide duty-free meal periods to Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees of 30 minutes or more. As a result, Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees’ meal and rest periods were constantly interrupted or were not taken at all.

Thus, Defendants unlawfully retained control of Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees during their meal periods, even though the nature of the work did not necessitate an on-duty meal period (and by failing to enter into proper on-duty meal period agreements). See Augustus v. ABM Security Services, Inc. (2016) 2 Cal. 5th 257, 275 (holding that on-premises breaks violate California law). As a result of Defendants’ failure to authorize or permit lawful meal periods, Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees frequently did not receive duty-free thirty-minute duty-free meal periods within the first five (5) hours of their work. Defendants also failed to pay Plaintiff and the meal period aggrieved employees meal period premiums for each workday that the employees did not receive a compliant meal period.

Labor Code § 226.7 provides “an employer shall not require an employee to work during a meal or rest or recovery period mandated pursuant to an applicable statute, or applicable regulation, standard, or order of the Industrial Welfare Commission (“IWC”). Similarly, IWC Wage Order 4-2001 prohibits an employer from “employ[ing] any person for a work period of more than five (5) hours without a meal period of not less than 30 minutes. IWC Wage Order 4-2001 further obligates employers to provide an employee to “pay the employee one (1) hour of pay at the employee’s regular rate of compensation for each workday that the meal period is not provided.” Accordingly, for each day that Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees did not receive compliant meal periods, they are entitled to receive meal period premiums pursuant to Labor Code § 226.7 and Wage Order 4-2001.

iv. Plaintiff and the Aggrieved Employees were not Provided Duty Free Compliant Rest Periods

Pursuant to Labor Code § 226.7, and Wage Order 4-2001, Defendants failed to provide Plaintiff and the other rest period aggrieved employees with duty-free rest periods of not less than ten (10) minutes for every major fraction of four hours worked.

Labor Code § 226.7 provides "an employer shall not require an employee to work during a meal or rest or recovery period mandated pursuant to an applicable statute, or applicable regulation, standard, or order of the Industrial Welfare Commission ("IWC")." Under IWC Wage Order 4-2001 an employer must authorize and permit all employees to take ten (10) minute duty free rest periods for every major fraction of four hours worked.

Defendants failed to implement a lawful rest period policy that informed Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees of their right to receive lawful rest periods for shifts greater than 3.5 hours. To the extent that Plaintiff and the rest period aggrieved employees could stop work during their shifts, they were nonetheless on-call due to the lack of relievers and were not provided with duty-free rest periods. See Augustus v. ABM Security Services, Inc., 2 Cal.5th 257 (2016) (holding that on-duty rest breaks violate California law).

Pursuant to Labor Code § 226.7 and Wage Order 4-2001, Defendants failed to provide Plaintiff and the rest period aggrieved employees with duty-free rest periods of not less than ten (10) minutes for every major fraction of four (4) hours worked. The Brinker Court explained in the context of rest breaks that employer liability attaches from adopting an unlawful policy:

An employer is required to authorize and permit the amount of rest break time called for under the wage order for its industry. If it does not-if, for example, it adopts a uniform policy authorizing and permitting only one rest break for employees working a seven-hour shift when two are required-it has violated the wage order and is liable.

Brinker Rest. Corp. v. Sup. Ct., supra, 53 Cal.4th at 1033. (Emphasis added.)

Since Defendants did not offer employees the opportunity to receive a compliant off-duty ten-minute rest periods, "the court may not conclude employees voluntarily chose to skip ... breaks." Alberts v. Aurora Behavioral Health Care, (2015) 241 Cal. App. 4th 388, 410 ("[i]f an employer fails to provide legally compliant meal or rest breaks, the court may not conclude employees voluntarily chose to skip those breaks."); accord Brinker Rest. Corp. v. Sup. Ct., supra, 53 Cal.4th at 1033 ("No issue of waiver ever arises for a rest break that was required by law but never authorized; if a break is not authorized, an employee has no opportunity to decline to take it.").

Even an employer who maintains an otherwise compliant rest period policy, "reminded their employees of their availability-and the importance-of taking breaks on a daily basis, and even went so far as to conduct regular audits to ensure that employees were being offered rest breaks" will still be liable for rest period violations if the employees were not separately or properly compensated for the non-productive time associated with rest periods under a piece-rate compensation system. Amaro v. Gerawan Farming, Inc., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 66842 * (E.D. Cal. May 19, 2016) aff'd Amaro v. Gerawan, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 112540, 2016 WL 4440966, at * 11 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2016); rev. denied by 9th Cir. (9th Cir. Nov. 16, 2016).

In addition, Plaintiff and the rest period aggrieved employees were not compensated with one (1) hour's worth of pay at their regular rate of compensation when they were not provided with a compliant rest period.

v. Defendants Violated and Continues to Violate Labor Code § 204

Labor Code § 204 expressly requires that “[a]ll wages...earned by any person in any employment are due and payable twice during each calendar month, on days designated in advance by the employer as the regular paydays.” Pursuant to Labor Code § 204(d), these requirements are “deemed satisfied by the payment of wages for weekly, biweekly or semimonthly payroll if the wages are paid not more than seven calendar days following the close of the payroll period.”

Due to Defendants’ failure to pay Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for all hours worked, overtime, and rest and meal period premiums,³ Defendants failed to timely pay the aggrieved employees within seven (7) days of the close of the payroll period in accordance with Labor Code § 204 on a regular and consistent basis. See Parson v. Golden State FC, LLC, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58299, 2016 WL 1734010, at *3-5 (N.D. Cal. May 2, 2016) (finding after Ling that a failure to pay rest period premiums can support claims under Labor Code §§ 203 and 204).

vi. Defendants’ Violation of Labor Code §§ 201-203

As a result of Defendants’ failure to pay wages to Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees for all hours worked, overtime, and meal period minimum wages and meal/rest period premiums, Defendants violated Labor Code § 203. Labor Code § 203 provides “if an employer willfully fails to pay . . . any wages of an employee who is discharged or who quits, the wages of the employee shall continue as a penalty. . .” for up to 30 days. Lab. Code § 203; Mamika v. Barca, (1998) 68

³ Courts routinely find that employees who do not receive meal/rest periods premiums are entitled to waiting time penalties under Labor Code § 203. See e.g. In re Autozone, Inc., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 105746 *23 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 10, 2016) (denying the defendant’s motion for summary judgment on the plaintiff’s claim for waiting time penalties based upon the failure to provide rest period premiums and finding that the California Court of Appeals decision in Ling vs. P.F. Chang’s China Bistro, Inc. (2016) 245 Cal. App. 4th 1242 “concerned only whether ‘a section 203 waiting time claim based on section 226.7 premium pay is an action brought for the non-payment of wages under section 218.5’”); Parson v. Golden State FC, LLC, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58299, 2016 WL 1734010, at *3-5 (N.D. Cal. May 2, 2016) (finding after Ling that a failure to pay rest period premiums can support claims under Labor Code §§ 203 and 204); Brewer v. Gen. Nutrition Corp. (N.D. Cal. Aug. 27, 2015) 2015 WL 5072039, at *19 [denying defendant’s motion for summary judgment because “the premium payments due under section 226.7 are to be considered “wages” for purposes of sections 203 and 226.”]; Abad v. Gen. Nutrition Centers, Inc. (C.D. Cal. Mar. 7, 2013) 2013 WL 4038617, at *3–4 [distinguishing Kirby, and finding “Plaintiffs’ section 203 claim for failure to pay wages...can be based on amounts owed under section 226.7.”.)

Cal.App.4th 487, 492.

Due to Defendants' faulty policies described above, all aggrieved employees whose employment with Defendants concluded were not compensated at the appropriate rate. Additionally, Defendants failed to pay all aggrieved employees for all hours worked, meal period premiums, and rest period premiums, whose sums were certain, at the time of termination or within seventy-two (72) hours of their resignation and have failed to pay those sums for thirty (30) days thereafter.

vii. Defendants' Violation of Labor Code §§ 226(a) and 226.3

Further, Defendants failed to provide Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees accurate itemized wage statements in accordance with Labor Code § 226(a) (1, 2, 5, and 9). Labor Code § 226 obligates employers, semi-monthly or at the time of each payment to furnish an itemized wage statement in writing showing:

- (1) gross wages earned;
- (2) total hours worked by the employee;
- (3) the number of piece-rate units earned and any applicable piece rate if the employee is paid on a piece rate;
- (4) all deductions, provided that all deductions made on written orders of the employee may be aggregated and shown as one item;
- (5) net wages earned;
- (6) the inclusive dates of the period for which the employee is paid;
- (7) the name of the employee and only the last four digits of his or her social security number or an employee identification number other than a social security number;
- (8) the name and address of the legal entity that is the employer...;
- (9) all applicable hourly rates in effect during the pay period and the corresponding number of hours worked at each hourly rate by the employee...

Due to Defendants' failure to provide Plaintiff and the Aggrieved Employees lawful meal and rest periods (and pay missed rest period premiums, overtime, and for all hours worked), the wage statements issued by Defendants do not indicate the correct amount of gross wages earned, the correct total hours worked, the correct net wages earned, or the applicable and/or correct hourly rates in effect during the pay period and the corresponding number of hours worked at each hourly rate in violation of Labor Code § 226(a)(1), (2), (5) and (9).

Thus, Plaintiff is an aggrieved employee within the meaning of PAGA and Defendants violated Labor Code § 226(a)(1), (2), (5), and (9) with respect to Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees.

Labor Code § 226.3 provides that "[a]ny employer who violates subdivision (a) of Section 226 shall be subject to a civil penalty in the amount of two hundred fifty dollars ($250) per employee per violation in an initial violation and one thousand dollars ($1,000) per employee for each violation in a subsequent citation, for which the employer fails to provide the employee a wage deduction statement or fails to keep the required in subdivision (a) of Section 226.” As explained in detail above, Defendants failed to provide Plaintiff and the other aggrieved employees with accurate itemized wage statements. Accordingly, Plaintiff and the other aggrieved employees may also recover Labor Code § 226.3 penalties for Defendant’s violations of Labor Code § 226(a). See Finder v. Leprino Foods Co. (E.D. Cal. Mar. 12, 2015) No. 1:13-CV-2059 AWI-BAM, 2015 WL 1137151, at *7 [“the weight of authority counsels that violations of Section 226.3 may be the basis of a PAGA claim.”]; Pedroza v. PetSmart, Inc., No. ED CV 11-298 GHK DTB, 2012 WL 9506073, at *6 (C.D. Cal. June 14, 2012) (“Lab. Code § 226.3 merely provides that failure to perform actions mandated by § 226(a) may trigger civil penalties.”).⁴

viii. Defendants Violated, and Continues to Violate Labor Code § 2802

Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees worked remotely. However, they were required by Defendants to keep and maintain their respective home offices with their own money. Despite spending for all these work-related items, Defendants did not reimburse Plaintiff and the aggrieved employees’ home office expenses.

Cal. Labor Code §2802 (a) provides that:

An employer shall indemnify his or her employee for all necessary expenditures or losses incurred by the employee in direct consequence of the discharge of his or her duties, or of his or her obedience to the directions of the employer, even though unlawful, unless the employee, at the time of obeying the directions, believed them to be unlawful.

Thus, employees such as Plaintiff and the Reimbursement Aggrieved Employees, are entitled to reimbursement for the expenses they incur during the course of their duties. The duty to reimburse even extends to the use of equipment the employee may already own and would be required to pay for anyway. Cochran v. Schwan's Home Serv., Inc. (2014) 228 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1144 (“The threshold question in this case is this: Does an employer always have to reimburse an employee for the reasonable expense of the mandatory use of a personal cell phone, or is the reimbursement obligation limited to the situation in which the employee incurred an extra expense that he or she would not have otherwise incurred absent the job? The answer is that reimbursement is always required. Otherwise, the employer would receive a windfall because it would be passing its operating expenses on to the employee.”) After all, the purpose of 2802 is to “prevent employers from passing along their operating expenses onto their employees.” Gattuso v. Harte-Hanks Shoppers, Inc., (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 554, 562.

Here, Defendants did not have a reimbursement policy for Plaintiff and the Reimbursement Aggrieved Employees for their reasonable and necessary business expenses. Thus, it is clear that not only did Plaintiff and the Aggrieved Employees incur expenses as a result of their employment, but that Defendants had a constructive knowledge of those expenses, and anticipating them, informed Plaintiff and the Aggrieved Employees that it would not provide any reimbursement. Therefore, Plaintiff is an aggrieved employee within the meaning of PAGA and Defendants have violated § 2802 with respect to Plaintiff and the Aggrieved Employees.

CONCLUSION

Therefore, pursuant to Labor Code § 2699.3, we write to inform you and the Labor and Workforce Development Agency, with whom this PAGA Notice has been filed, of our intent to pursue a PAGA representative action and a Class Action against Defendants seeking PAGA penalties under Labor Code § 2699 to be brought by Plaintiff, individually and on behalf of the aggrieved employees, as defined above.

Nevertheless, it is the policy of this firm to attempt to negotiate an early resolution of all matters where possible and beneficial to the aggrieved employees and all putative class members. If Defendants are interested in attempting to resolve this matter on a class-wide basis, including the PAGA claims, please contact me or have your lawyer contact me so that we can discuss an informal discovery plan and the possibility of early mediation on or before July 10, 2025. If we do not hear from you on or before July 10, 2025, we will proceed with this matter with the understanding that Defendants do not wish to negotiate an early resolution of this matter.
